

Learning Something New

In this month's column I would like to explore the significance of a person's mouth size and shape. Mouths in face reading can provide revealing insights into an individual's true personality and what will drive those same personality traits. Which mouth are you?

Mouth Size & Shape

IDEAL MOUTH - This mouth indicates very calm, predictable personality not inclined to extremes. Generally the mouth of a warm cheerful and outgoing personality. People with this kind of mouth typically can go through a lot of adversity and heartache and will remain positive and optimistic in their life's outlook.

BALANCED MOUTH - (Upper and lower lips same thickness and spacing from lip area). Depicts a very personable, socially outgoing individual. A personality that needs attention and will give love and affection easily and openly. Only area to be careful is inclination with this kind of mouth to be too quick to make friends. Take time to be sure their intentions are true or desire to be loved will have them repeatedly disappointed.

THIN WIDE MOUTH - A forceful commanding personality. Strong in charge, take control characters who need to feel they are running things or at least their opinions are needed or they can easily become very restless and belligerent with the role as an underling. Obviously a personality needing to surround themselves with people who really understand them and can handle their forcefulness or they will experience frequent episodes of loneliness and estrangements because of confrontations with others.

BOW SHAPED MOUTH - A cynical, frequently pessimistic personality. A mouth indicating a person who will project only what they want others to know about them. Parts of their personality they don't want exposed will be kept carefully camouflaged. Clearly a personality inclined to a closed circle of friends and family socially. This kind of mouth also indicates a personality driven to control all areas of their lives often to the extremes. With this mouth, individual needs to work on trust and spontaneity with others.

CRESCENT SHAPED MOUTH - A perky, high energy personality. Tending towards talking and thinking to fast. A personality driven by their loves of variety and change especially in their social and romantic lives. These kinds of "mouths" need to cultivate discipline to focus on one person, issue etc. at one time or will be viewed as flighty and unreliable by others.

DOWNTURNED MOUTH - A person with a very specific opinion and outlook on just about any topic. A personality very goal driven in all facets of life. An individual most comfortable and secure when directing and controlling all areas of their existence particularly financially and materially. This kind of mouth needs to cultivate a more relaxed less driven approach towards life. Welcoming rather than being suspicious of things happening spontaneously. If they don't cool their demanding ways they often exhaust themselves and those close to them emotionally.

CHERRY MOUTH - Indicative of a mothering, nurturing comforter type personality, motivated to give love and guidance to others and to see responsibilities/jobs situations which place them in helping/service type roles. Generally not a mouth seeking to be the captain but first mate in social or romantic situations. Usually only comfortable with authority if shared with someone else. These personalities need to watch tendency to alternate too dramatically between being mothering and being suffocating of those emotionally close. Strive to work on balance with knowing when to comfort and when to back off.

SMALL MOUTH - Typically introverted loner personality. Motivated by need not to be too involved in the lives of others. Even with family members this kind of mouth will be quite secretive and non committal with any significant information about themselves. In communicating with others will often be a person of few words. Generally a personality which abhors extravagant displays of emotions or feelings. Depending on other facial traits, will generally hold their tone when speaking and flat and quite expressionless. Obviously a personality needing to strike a balance between their need for distance from others and being able to function without becoming r
